

I'm writing regarding Low Power FM and the threat this may be to current FM translator service, specifically the FM radio station known as K-LOVE. K-LOVE's motto is "encouraging words and positive music" and that pretty well sums up what it provides to thousands of listeners. I feel our community is enhanced by the service that K-LOVE provides, and would hate to see it diminished in any way. K-LOVE is listener supported, and the fact that it has been able to expand into several new locations each year is a testimony that it has a large number of supporters. It must be serving the public if the public supports it financially. If LPFM stations were to take priority over current FM stations such as K-LOVE, I feel it would be a great loss to our community.
